

User Story Number	Feedback From Instructor	Changes Made
1	This story effectively captures a relatable user goal. The ultimate benefit of sleeping in later is a great motivator for the app's efficiency.	No revision was needed. The instructor said the story was well-constructed and relatable.
2	Great idea to focus on using the user's own clothes. The benefit seems to be time-saving, similar to the first story.  -1 Consider refining to differentiate it more clearly from the first user story, or combine them	As a user, I want to search for my clothing items through the app so that I can quickly decide on an outfit without being in front of my closet.
6	This is an excellent feature idea! It seems like advanced functionality and related to getting more clothing items? Or does holes mean something else? -.5 clarity	As a user, I want to be able to inventory my closet through the app so I can stay updated on the clothes I own, even if they are not visible in my physical closet.
9	seems lower priority? I think this requires a few other features and people may not remember how much many items cost?	Replaced with: As a user, I want to see 3-4 outfit suggestions for different moods or styles when I open the app in the morning so that I can quickly choose my look for the day.
17	It's great that you're considering user experience! This story provides a good high-level goal. Consider adding more specific UX stories to complement this.	Added new user story (#9)

User Story Number	Feedback From Instructor	Changes Made
18	This story effectively communicates the desired feature and its benefit. It's appropriately high-level for a user story.	No revision needed. The story is well-constructed and clear.
19	This is a wonderful idea, is this complimenting to be done in the app or outside of the app e.g. in real life? -1 clarity	As a user, I want the app to encourage me to compliment my friends' outfits within the app so that i can spread positivity in our online interactions.